

GLOBAL PEACE PATH INTERCULTURAL SERVICE LEARNING IN MUNICH, INDIA AND SOON AT YOUR SITE, TOO?

Student teachers from the University of Munich (LMU) and refugees exchanged visions of peace, which they then collected in the form of collaboratively written poems. These poems were printed on signs and permanently erected alongside a lake to the northwest of Munich. They thereby form the beginning of a peace path we hope to see spread worldwide.

Global Peace Path

The cooperative project between the University of Munich (LMU), the Helpers-Circle Asylum Karlsfeld and refugees aims at setting an example for peace and international understanding. The project started on a local level with refugees and students who collaboratively wrote poems on the topic of peace. These texts were used to build a multilingual path of peace messages. As follow-up projects are undertaken in other sites in Germany and worldwide, an expanding Global Peace Path is literally emerging.

The concept of the Global Peace Path is based on “Intercultural Service Learning”, a pedagogy which combines intercultural education projects and community service.

Join us!

We are looking for school classes, university courses, youth groups, and many more who are excited about intercultural encounters, motivated to creatively deal with the topic of peace and inspired to continue the Global Peace Path in their region.

BE PART OF A GLOBAL PROJECT

Invite newcomers in your region and write poems on peace in multicultural teams. You can then jointly translate the poems into other languages. Finally, these texts will be made visible to the public. This can be done using posters, signs or within art installations. Get creative and build a new station of the Global Peace Path.

WE ARE LOOKING FORWARD TO THE COLLABORATION!

Online documentation

You have already created another station of the Global Peace Path with your team? Please tell us more about it!

On our website, we collect documentation from all stations of the Global Peace Path on a world map. In this way, you can easily track how far this idea has already spread. Send us your location and photos of your station via email, and your contribution to the Global Peace Path will immediately be entered: you are now officially part of a global initiative!
